

AYBU LAP transitioned into providing external online advisor educator classes with their first ever workshop, held on March 19, 2021.

The workshop was divided into two sections and provided participants with a ‘taste’ of advising, including 2 break-out session activities where participants could practice their newly learned advising strategies on each other and then reflect about their experiences.

A post-workshop feedback survey was sent to participants. An example reflection found below illustrates the new understanding of advising one participant gained from the workshop:

“Before the workshop I used the compass metaphor. I now think the compass metaphor was not totally wrong, but as far as I understand, advising is not just like showing the right path, it is more like helping one to find the right path. The compass simply shows the way that you should go but in an advising session, it is more like letting the advisee find the answers in themselves and draw a path for themselves.”
